In particular, Supplier is expressly forbidden to resell them. In case of a decrease in value or loss Supplier has to provide compensation for damages. Customer reserves the right of ownership of the provided parts and components even after performance of the order by Supplier.

In the event Supplier acquires joint ownership/ownership of the provided parts and components or of objects that were connected with these parts and components he undertakes to transfer the joint ownership/ownership to Customer free of charge within 7 calendar days, counted from the day of the acquisition of joint ownership. If Supplier does not comply with this obligation he is obligated to pay a contractual penalty to Customer amounting to 1% of the gross

If Supplier has concerns regarding the kind of execution requested by Customer he must notify Customer immediately and in due time in writing.

- (2) Supplier shall also be responsible for quality defects of the delivered products even if the manufacture of the goods was done in the way determined by Customer or based on technological documentation sent by him unless Supplier could not detect the defectiveness of the production process or the technological documentation by observing utmost diligence, or Customer insisted on the way of production he determined or the technological documentation despite having obtained the information of Supplier.
- (3) Upon request of Customer Supplier shall immediately issue a quality certificate for the delivered goods free of charge. Supplier undertakes to hand over the safety data sheets applicable to his respective delivery (information on the safety of the contractual products) together with the delivery as far as these are necessary in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions in Poland and the European Union. Supplier shall indemnify Customer against all recourse claims by third parties in case he does not deliver the safety data sheets to Customer or only late or with errors. The same shall apply to all their subsequent modifications.
- (4) After their receipt, Customer shall check incoming goods solely for their identity (conformity of delivered goods with order), completeness and transport damages if this is the normal procedure in this kind of business transaction. Usually Customer hereby only does a random sample test. Notifications of defects are deemed in time if they are made within one month starting from the time of the discovery of the defect. The period is observed if the registered letter is sent within the period mentioned in the previous sentence or Supplier receives the notification of defect within one month via other communication means within the period mentioned in the previous sentence. This restriction, however, shall not be applied if the contractual product was already exchanged or repaired, except the defect is insignificant.

However, Customer shall in any case be entitled to demand a credit of the respective purchase price/remuneration from Supplier instead of the rework or subsequent delivery (supplementary performance)

- (6) Supplier shall bear all expenses needed for the purpose of warranty, especially costs of travel and transportation, labour and material as well as costs for necessary insurances.
- (7) This includes, among others, in addition to the aforementioned also the costs for installation and removal of the defective contractual product as well as costs or damages caused by the fact that the product was incorporated into other products or devices. Therefore the costs within the supplementary performance also include the damages caused to other objects of legal protection by Customer or third parties due to the supply of defective contractual products ("Weiterfresser").
- (8) At his discretion, Customer may immediately sort out and rework the defective contractual products at the expense of Supplier instead of a supplementary performance in order to secure the delivery capacity towards the client.

The warranty period for constructions is subject to the statutory provisions; for replacement parts exchanged within the rework it is 36 months after installation/start-up, ending 48 months after delivery at the latest. If Customer is late with the acceptance of the contractual product by at least 12 months through no fault of his own the warranty period shall be two years, beginning with the time of acceptance through Customer.
- (11) For delivered parts, replacement parts and other parts pertaining to the contractual product that are not used by Customer during the inspection of a defect and/or the elimination of defects the current warranty period shall be extended by the time of the business interruption.
For repaired or newly delivered parts, the warranty period shall recommence with the end of the rework/exchange or, if an acceptance was agreed, with the acceptance if Supplier acts in the knowledge to be obligated to eliminate the defects. Supplier should make an application for performance of acceptance, otherwise the warranty period will not recommence.
- (12) The aforementioned provisions do not affect any further provisions or other statutory claims to which Customer is entitled.
